

GitHub repo link: https://github.com/eerhs/Sustainable_information_structure_project.git

Self-Critique

For my Research Paper Toolbox site, I focused on providing a clear, user-friendly layout that displayed the resources for the Data and Research modules. I created a helpful navigation bar for the modules and also added, and visual elements for the case studies and sidebars to break down complex information. The design allows users to easily find and understand the different strategies and tools.

If I had more time, I would have integrated more dynamic elements, such as a search feature. The navigation in the modules is not perfect, as it doesn't go to the correct line and the top gets cut off. I would have liked to fix that but it would require some javascript and that wasn't in the scope of this project. The layout is also not friendly on all devices, so I could have improved its responsiveness. I also wanted to improve the home page, since it is not very attractive and feels. monotone. Overall, this site succeeds in its job to display the research tools but could improve on its presentation to make a more fleshed out product.